This year sees the 160th anniversary of the Royal Society for Public Health and the Association of Directors of Public Health. As both organisations can trace their history back to 1856 – and the formation of the Metropolitan Association of Medical Officers of Health, we are holding a special event to commemorate our birthday.

The celebration will include a special lecture from Dr Alex Mold, Senior Lecturer at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and Deputy Director of the Centre for History in Public Health, who will give an overview of how the public’s health has changed since 1856.

Our event will be hosted by Phillip Woodward, Chair-elect of RSPH and Andrew Furber, President of ADPH

Refreshments, a hot buffet and birthday cake will also be provided.
