

Annual Review 2010-2011

This year, the first of the new 2010-13 Business Plan, has been one of the busiest for the organisation in recent times, with continuing policy work on key public health topics identified by members as their priorities for 2010, and significant advocacy and lobbying on the new coalition government's proposals for the NHS, social care and public health system in England. President Frank Atherton fulfilled an extensive programme of meetings with stakeholders and joined key national committees involved in shaping the new system, supported by members of the Executive and the Chief Executive.

Membership surveys on a range of topics, regular e-DPH and additional ad-hoc membership communications, and national/regional member workshops have continued to ensure membership engagement with - and input to - the organisation, supported by the Constituency Representative structure.

UK wide ADPH member input enabled ADPH to produce authoritative position statements and lobbying materials on the DPH role and wider public health workforce – used nationally and locally to influence and inform development of the new NHS and public health system proposals.

Policy work has continued to focus on collaborative projects with the dual aims of supporting DsPH locally as well as advocating for improvements nationally.

Employed staff continued to deliver the Business Plan objectives on target. The subscription process was reviewed and a new system will be proposed to the 2011 AGM.
