

ADPH Annual Conference 2015

Making the case for Public Health

Monday 2nd November 2015

9.30 - 16.30

Woburn House, 20 Tavistock Square, London WC1H 9HQ

This year we will explore

Making the Case for Public Health including how we:

- extend our reach at a time of continuing fiscal restraint and system re-design
- maximise the opportunities offered by devolution, integration and transformational place based approaches
- make the case for national and local public health approaches

The programme will include presentations from key-note speakers; in-depth panel discussions sparked by questions from delegates; and topic based workshops.

The conference also provides a forum for networking and discussion opportunities for leaders in Public Health across the British Isles.

Full details of the Conference programme to follow

All ADPH subscriber organisations receive one DPH place free of charge plus one subsidised place

Secure your place now!

by completing the attached registration form and returning it as soon as possible to: enquiries@adph.org.uk

Confirmed speakers include:

Stephen Dorrell

Stephen is a former British Conservative politician and a consultant with the health and public service practice of KPMG. He served as the Member of Parliament for Loughborough, then for Charnwood and most recently as Chairman of the House of Commons Health Select Committee.

Dr. Anna Dixon

Anna is the newly appointed CEO of the Centre for Ageing Better leading the organisation to fulfil its mission of promoting evidence-based change that transforms how we experience and think about growing older. Previously Anna served as a Chief Analyst and a Director of Strategy at the Department of Health and a Director of Policy and acting Chief Executive at The King's Fund.