ADPH Awards 2023 – Nominations open!

Following the success of our inaugural awards last year, we are delighted to invite nominations for the ADPH Awards 2023, which will be held in a ceremony at our Annual Conference. There are five awards for individual DsPH and three team awards. This year, in recognition of the importance of partnership working, we are welcoming nominations from anyone who has worked alongside DsPH and/or PH teams.

The categories, which have been chosen to highlight and celebrate good PH practice, are:

CMOs' National Impact Award – for a DPH in recognition of the impact they have had since starting the role. This award is supported by the CMOs of all four nations.

Contribution to ADPH Award – for a DPH who has made a significant contribution to our work.

Innovative Practice Award – for a DPH who has demonstrated or championed innovative practice within their organisation.

Partnership Award – for a DPH who has led a successful local or national partnership with a sector or organisation.

Mentoring Award – for a DPH who has shown dedication and commitment to mentoring, either as part of the ADPH mentoring scheme or another public health mentoring programme.

Quality Improvement Award – for a public health team who have established effective ways to improve practice.

Team Award – for a public health team who have worked exceptionally well together to improve public health outcomes in their area.

Research Award – for a DPH and their team for undertaking public health research, or using research evidence in an innovative way, to inform decision making in their organisation.

Nominations will close on Monday 09 October at 11am and winners will be selected by a panel of judges made up of Nicola Close, ADPH CE and representatives from the awards' sponsors. Please share the award information and nomination link far and wide!

Prof Jim McManus to stand down as ADPH President

Earlier this month, ADPH President, Prof Jim McManus announced he will be leaving his role as President for a new position at Public Health Wales. Jim's leadership has been pivotal to the growth of ADPH as a trusted organisation locally and nationally, and we thank him for his dedication and commitment. Our CE Nicola Close leads the whole team in wishing Jim every success; we look forward to his continued partnership with us, and particularly our members in Wales. Our Vice President, Greg Fell (DPH Sheffield), will take the role of Acting President until the upcoming election.

ADPH in the News

This month, the Guardian ran a story exposing the legal loophole that allows nicotine pouches to be sold to children. Our policy lead for addiction, Alice Wiseman was quoted in the article and you can read her full statement on our website. In the MJ, Prof. Jim McManus wrote about the importance of collaboration and local public health knowledge in tackling the current health crisis following the report from Reform which Jim was interviewed for. He was also interviewed by BBC Radio 4's Today programme and BBC Radio 5 Live about the impact sewage in water can have on people's health. Following the interviews, which can be found on BBC Sounds, we published an explainer on the history of water sanitation. We also published our response to DHSC's interim report on the Major Conditions Strategy and a letter to the BMJ from the Institute of Health Promotion and Education in response to the report cited our Manifesto for a Healthier Nation, recognising the importance of DsPH and calling for protected investment in public health.
